

Mike Williams is a musician and singer / songwriter from Raleigh, NC. His influences include The Beatles, Jimi Hendrix, Led Zeppelin, Collective Soul, Klaatu, Jack White and many other artists over the past 40 years.

Mike released his debut album Leaving Dystopia in February 2013. Dystopia contains 10 songs including nine originals plus a superb remake of John Lennon's classic masterpiece "Working Class Hero".

When asked why he took on the endeavor of writing and recording the album Mike commented:

'I realized years ago that humanity is at a crossroads. Some might even say in crisis. I wanted to get the message out that in order to manifest change we need to leave the dysfunction behind us and move in a direction where truth, peace and love prevail. We need to break away from the paradigm of fear and get the planet to awaken. There are many ways each of us can help to make this shift. For me that vehicle is through my music. I view Dystopia as my personal contribution toward helping humanity get off its collective knees. We can either continue to live a life of enslavement or we can unshackle and be who we truly are which is divine souls with infinite potential.'

Mike's unique style coupled with his fusion of influences shine through in this refreshing and relevant collection of songs which he hopes will help awaken your inner spirit. Enjoy!
